

Italian and Spanish Consulates In Philadelphia Wrecked by Most Terrific Blasts in City's History

Walls Thru Gathers at Scene of First, Second Bombing Takes Place.

RADICALS ARE BLAMED

Police Begin Round-Up of Communists, Fascists and Anarchists Italian Consul Unharmed But Spanish Official Is Hurt From Blast, Shocked.

By United Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 24.—The Italian and Spanish consulates in South Philadelphia were wrecked by two terrific bomb explosions early today.

The first bomb explosion was on the steps of the Spanish consul's home at 701 Pine street shortly after 1 o'clock. The second bombing was at the Sons of Italy Bank at Broad and Tasker streets, above which the Italian consulate is located.

In the blast at the Spanish consulate many windows were broken for blocks. Hundreds of persons were hurled from their beds and many were bruised and cut by flying glass.

Police rushed to the scene, hospital crews were summoned and thousands of excited citizens massed around the wrecked buildings.

While the excitement at the Spanish consulate was at its height the bombers, taking advantage of the confusion, hurried to the Italian consulate and dropped a time bomb on the steps of the bank.

The Italian and Spanish consuls escaped injury. Signor Mileti, the Italian consul, was at his home when the explosion occurred at the Italian consulate, and Emil Dekketa, the Spanish consul, was hurt from his bed but aside from shock was not injured.

The explosions are said by police to have been the most terrific in the history of the city. The detonations were heard for several miles.

A round-up of radical suspects was begun at once. Spanish and Italian Communists and Fascists are known to frequent the city, and it is believed the anarchists here have joined forces with them.

Diphtheria Death Rate Reduced One-Half in Seven Years

By United Press.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 24.—The death rate from diphtheria has been reduced one half since 1906, according to an announcement today by Secretary of Health Charles H. Minor.

In 1906 there were 2,458 deaths from this disease, and the rate according to population was 34.1, while in 1932, there were 1,600 deaths with a rate of 16.7, statistics of the department show.

"Most of the deaths from diphtheria are unnecessary," said Dr. Minor. "The deaths come from neglect to recognize early symptoms and start treatment immediately with anti-toxins."

These facts are being brought to the attention of doctors, teachers and state officials in the form of a circular on the disease and its characteristics.

NEW SCOTSDALE PAPER WILL "HIDE" DEMOCRATIC MULE

SCOTSDALE, Nov. 24.—A new weekly newspaper, the Scotsdale News, made its bow to the public Friday. C. H. Groves is editor, Elmer R. Hartley, business manager. The initial number is of four pages, eight columns to the page. In politics it will be Republican, as the editorial announcement sets forth in the following:

"Politically, we shall adhere to the policies of the Grand Old Republican party, founded by the immortal Lincoln, and so ably served by such leaders as McKinley, Roosevelt, Harding and Coolidge. We intend to bias the virtues of the G. O. P. elephant to the skies, at the same time condoning his short-comings, while at every opportunity we shall 'hide' the Democratic mule, and guilty or not, he will be blamed for the political troubles which daily assail us, and daily we shall work and hope and pray that we may be spared politically from all things Democratic in the White House and the Hall of Congress."

FRANCE IS GIVEN CONTROL OF ENTIRE OUTPUT OF RUHR

By United Press.

PARIS, Nov. 24.—The Franco-German agreement giving France control over the output of the Ruhr basin will be used as a lever to overcome British opposition to the occupation of the German industrial area. It was indicated here today.

The agreement, signed in Düsseldorf between French representatives and leading German industrialists, gives France control over the entire output of the Ruhr mines, factories and chemical plants.

The big product, of course, is coal and it is through control of the German mines that France hopes to bring pressure to bear on England. In other words the French feel that the Ruhr agreement insures them control of the bulk of Europe's coal supply with control of the former German industrial deposits already in their hands through territory obtained by the treaty of Versailles the industrial union is complete—oil and fuel.

Would Allow Only Voters to Play Golf

By United Press.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 24.—Robert Garland, city councilman, and sometimes called "father of the daylight savings law," has an idea which he thinks will make citizens of any community take enough interest in their city to register and vote.

Nearly every sizable community has municipal golf courses and tennis courts, and Mr. Garland's idea is to make everyone wishing to play first produce their tax receipts showing they are a voting citizen before being admitted.

Garland would make this idea a city ordinance. In the recent primary, Garland severely criticized those citizens who failed to take enough interest in their city to register and vote.

VON KARDORFF IS ASKED TO FORM NEW GERMAN CABINET

Successor to Chancellor Stresemann Leader of People's Party.

By United Press.

BERLIN, Nov. 24.—President Ebert today requested Deputy Rikhard von Kardorff, a leader of the Deutsche Volkspartei, (German People's party) to endeavor to form a new cabinet.

Von Kardorff immediately began conversation with the party leaders.

Von Kardorff was born in 1873 in Berlin. He is a member of the same party as former Chancellor Stresemann, the German People's party. Von Kardorff has been a member of the Reichstag for some time and is well known as a parliamentarian. Immediately following the German revolution he was a member of the German National party. However, this party was too reactionary for von Kardorff and he left to become a member of the German People's party.

Stresemann's resignation late yesterday came after he failed to retain support for his coalition cabinet in the face of strong attacks by the Socialists. The chancellor demanded a showdown on his policy and vote of misconfidence followed, 230 to 165.

AGREEMENT SAVES SENATOR CROW'S ESTATE $100,000

In orphan's court in Uniontown this morning the estate of the late United States Senator William E. Crow was saved more than $100,000 when an agreement was reached between the estate and F. M. Graf, president of the First National Bank of Blairsville, the latter agreeing to accept 1,500 shares of capital stock in the Westmoreland Mining Company in return for $250,000 worth of notes held against the estate. The stock is valued at $100 per share.

Graf also holds two promissory notes valued at $60,000 and also had due him interest amounting to $10,000 on the $250,000 note. All these were turned over in exchange for the shares of mining stock.

60-Day Jail Sentence Will Make "Martyred" Official of New York City's Next Mayor?

CONTROLLER CHARLES L. CRAIG

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Sixty days behind the bars in Essex County jail will punish Controller Charles Craig of New York City for the offense of criticizing Federal Judge Mayer, but it will also make him mayor of the city of New York, his friends here believe.

Ords of 15 to 1 are being offered in Wall street to this effect. Craig declares himself ready to go to prison. Friends are active to prevent the carrying out of the sentence.

Craig's aid, Henry Smith, died of heart failure due to the shock of his chief's commitment.

Strong Pressure Brought to Save Craig From Prison

By United Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Political and private pressure was brought to bear from all quarters today to save Charles Craig, city controller of New York, from 90 days in jail on the issue of "free speech."

Craig was held in contempt by Federal Judge Mayer because he criticized the court for a decision in connection with the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company reversionary. The Supreme Court upheld Judge Mayer.

United States Senator Roy S. Copeland, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt and many prominent Republicans are said to be working for a Presidential pardon.

In the storm of protest letters have been received from all parts of the country denouncing the court system which would force a man to jail for criticizing the decision of a Federal Judge. Several prominent citizens have written letters to Judge Mayer denouncing him in even more caustic terms than Craig used and challenging him to sentence them.

Craig is making every preparation for going through with the sentence. His wife is planning to run a room near the jail so that she may be close to her husband. Craig says he will not seek a pardon and that he has authorized no one to seek it for him.

Woman of 55 Forced to SM With Corpse of William Philippi at Feet.

Released at Boswell

From Daniel Rush Somerset County Officers Get Details of Tragedy Near Unsub But Murderer and Accomplice in Moonshining Make Escape.

Special to The Courier.

CONFERENCE, Nov. 24.—The murderer of William Philippi has made good his escape, in the belief of local officers of the law, along with an alleged accomplice. Both are Italians. The only name by which the alleged slayer is known here is "Sam," though he was at one time located in Confluence.

A sensational story is told in connection with the murder. In order to prevent them spreading the alarm the murderer and his companion forced Daniel Rush, at whose home, near Dunsmuir, the crime was committed, to Philippi's automobile with Dan's mother, 55 years old, and the body of the dead man, while into another car, owned by Sam they placed John Rush and his wife and drove them to Boswell, near Somerset, where they were released.

At Ursina, it is said they were joined by another car. On the way across the mountains, near Brooks tunnel, they transferred Dan and his mother to that car and ran the one with the dead man over an embankment into the brush where it was found Wednesday evening by Armour Miller, a teacher, who that morning, on his way to school, had found the man's cap along the road.

The members of the Rush families returned to their home Thursday. In the meantime it had been visited by officials who found 10 barrels of whiskey and a lot of cash in rooms rented to Sam and his companion.

According to the story gleaned from Dan Rush, Philippi whose home was about a mile away, and who is reported to have been engaged in disposing of the stuff made by Philippi, had stopped at the Rush home, the night of the murder. It was said he complained that the Italian had "raised the price" on him and had made remarks that angered Sam, who was in an adjoining room. It is said there had been unfriendly feeling.

According to a story said to have been told by Dan, Sam suddenly appeared with a revolver and in the quarrel that ensued fired at Philippi, the bullet striking in the neck. As Philippi fell to the floor, he fired twice, one bullet tearing through the chest in the region of the heart, the other striking in the left arm.

While Sam is blamed for the shooting, it was said his companion in the moonshine business, aided in getting the body to the automobile and drove one of the cars on the trip to Boswell. Who was in the car that the parties met at Ursina has not been learned.

Before the body of Philippi was buried it was brought to Confluence, last evening, and taken to the Frantz Hospital where a further autopsy was held to determine the exact cause of the wounds. The bullet which caused death was found just beneath the skin in the lower part of the back. It was of the steel jacket type, 11 caliber size. The body was then taken to the cemetery.

Daniel Rush, who accompanied Sheriff H. L. Griffiths to Confluence yesterday and from whom the officers learned the details of the murder, and many of the details, was released in the evening.

The aged Mrs. Rush was said to be suffering from shock and the ordeal of the long ride after night in Boswell.

Three men suspected of being implicated in the moonshining were arrested while they were viewing the damaged Spanish consulate.

The men gave their names as Joseph Vincenzo, 27; Lewis Diaz, 30; and Vincent DiPalma. They were arraigned before a magistrate and held for further investigation. They denied any knowledge of the bombing.

Believe Man Who Held 20 Police At Bay Is Insane

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—Altogether ex-austed Roy Hendrickson today after he held 20 police at bay in a downtown hotel here last night and frightened the several hundred guests with revolver shots.

Hendrickson, who says he is from Shawnee, Okla., claims to be a former member of ex-Governor Walton's secret service.

Tear bombs finally routed Hendrickson from his room in the hotel. He told stories of having been robbed by a captain of police. Police think he is insane.

Uses Blood to Rejuvenate.

German Surgeon Claims New Transfusion Method Rejuvenates Youth.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Discovery of a method of blood transfusion which not only rejuvenates patients submitting themselves to it, but prolongs life, is claimed by Dr. Frederick Heyman, a German surgeon.

The method of transfusion adopted, Dr. Heyman told an interviewer, revitalizes the blood of the patient and can be practiced on both sexes, in cases where a direct transfusion is not desired, a serum may be injected.

Dr. Heyman has acted as consultative surgeon at Breslau and Leipzig Universities and is now while holding these posts that he carried out most of his experiments, in which striking results are claimed to have been obtained.

CAVE ARTISTS OF FRANCE

Student of Toulouse makes remarkable discovery while swimming in an underground stream.

A romantic discovery has just been made by a student of Toulouse university who swam along an underground stream for a mile with an electric torch in his hand, and found some relics believed to be at least 20,000 years old.

In the south of France and in Spain, and to a less extent elsewhere, drawings on bone, and modeling in clay, and painting on rocks have shown that 20,000 to 30,000 years ago men who lived in caves had the knack of representing, by a rude kind of art, the animals they knew.

The student of Toulouse university, Carver by name, discovered what might be called the studio of an artist of the cave-dwelling period.

On the walls of the cave were rough drawings of animals, and around were models made in clay, some in the early stage of being shaped and others more fully formed.

Among the animals represented were lions, tigers, wolves and bears. This is the first time lions have been found among the animals known to the cave artists who once lived in France.

The animals of the prehistoric sculptor appear all to be wounded, and it is believed the hunters must have damaged the models before setting out on a hunting expedition, believing that in doing so they were rendering the real animals vulnerable to their weapons.

MRS. COFFMAN ILL SEVEN YEARS

Saved from an Operation by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Rec'd. Ill.—"I was a nervous wreck. I was suffering from a pain in my left side, which was almost unbearable, and I could not even let the bedclothing rest on my body at night. I had been sick for seven years, but not so bad until the last eighteen months, and had become so run-down that I cared for nobody, and would rather have died than live. I couldn't do my work without help, and the doctors told me that an operation was all there was left. I would not consent to that, as my husband brought me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begged me to take it. I have taken fourteen bottles of it and I feel ten years younger. Life is full of hope. I do all my household work and have a large garden this year. I will be married to the Vegetable Compound in the house, and when my two little girls reach womanhood I intend to teach them to take it. I am never too busy to tell some suffering woman of my tale, and you take my name and letter to spread the good news of Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine."—Mrs. Ida M. Coffman, R. B. 2, Sidell, Ill.

ANN'S NOT WORRIED
Knew Exactly Where She'll Get Coin for Christmas.

"No," said Clara Louise to Mary Lou, the other day, "I'm not worried a bit about money for Christmas. I began dropping my spare coins in the First National Bank's Automatic Teller, last spring, and now I have a nice bunch of money to my credit. Say, Lou, it's the easiest way to save I ever heard of."—Advertisement.—20nov-31-eod.

RED PIMPLES ALL OVER BODY
Icked Badly and Burned. Cuticura Heals.

"My trouble started with small, red pimples that broke out all over my body. They itched very badly and some of them feasted and came to a head. The pimples burned like the time, and I could not sleep well. I used other remedies without success. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Ruby L. Hickok, R. F. D. 1, Emporium, Pa.

Use Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum for all itchy eruptions. Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum are sold everywhere. Cuticura Soap is sold in 10-cent cakes. Cuticura Ointment is sold in 10-cent boxes. Cuticura Talcum is sold in 10-cent boxes.

On Fighting Wrinkles

JES T ONE RECEPTION AFTER ANOTHER

There's lots o' readin' matter goin' th' rounds these days on how t' promote long life an' preserve beauty an' youthfulness, an' keep a noble an' graceful. An' we often read inter-vi-views with ole thors in which they toll how they stay young, an' it's by keepin' sweet temper, an' keepin' th' conscience open t' inspection, leavin' t' backer an' alcohol alone, keepin' th' feet dry, holdin' optimistic, an' keepin' th' mind an' hands employed. Toll Dinkley's gran'maw lived till they had t' feed her with a funnel. They took care o' her just like she was a baby, an' they'd poke anything in th' funnel that would pass through it. Anything left at th' dinner table, scraps o' this or that, coffee grounds, or anything, they just poked in th' funnel. If they was goin' t' be away for a day or two they jest heaped th' funnel up an' let it work through as th' gran'maw needed it. She hung on an' on, an' they never did know jest when she died. Gittin' ole hain't much o' a stunt. We git ole in years in spite o' anything we kin do, but keepin' th' school boy face an' elastic step is another proposition. We was t'alkin' t' a feller th' other day that we hade seen for twenty years an' he looked exactly like he did when we first met him. He's been travelin' constantly since th' late fifties. He's had t' put up with all sorts o' hotels an' boardin' houses an' railroad accommodations. He never played golf in his life, an' he's never in a beauty parlor, or had a hot towel on his face.

He don't ride horses or take hikes. He has no health buildin' hobbies like indoor ball an' other lively sports. He gits scarcely any exercise, an' don't use no wrinkle killa' face cream. He's been all over the world time an' time again, an' has appeared before all th' crowned heads o' Europe, an' millions an' millions o' plain people in this country. He only smiles when th' occasion warrants it, an' he eats pork, hot bread, an' absolutely no carrots, an' he drinks coffee. All this talk about reception, an' handshakin' killa' Presidents is bosh, for "Zip," P. T. Barnum's original "What Is It," hain't done nobthin' else but mingle with crowds an' brass bands an' shake hands since 1857, an' he hain't got a gray hair or a wrinkle.

"MAN FROM NEW YORK," with Fred C. Church in the stellar role, is the leading attraction today at this theatre. "The Man From New York" has the merits of a high class dramatic motion picture. Not only because of its absorbing story, but because of the excellent acting of the capable strong cast. Fred Church and Marie Wells have the leading roles, with Rita Pickering and William Jones playing the heavies. Other parts played by very capable screen artists and the splendid direction of Fred J. Balshofer.

It tells a story of the up-building of a man to higher levels in the great west, and his fight to save the girl he loves from the nefarious schemes of the leader of a gang of bad men of the plains.

Monday and Tuesday, "What Fools Men Are," will be shown.

The Soisson

"THE HUNTRESS," showing today at this theatre is a First National comedy-drama with Colleen Moore in the leading role. In this picture Miss Moore is seen in the lovable role of a vivacious, mischievous Indian girl—that is, she is an Indian until she learns that in reality she is white. The part seems especially suited to this talented young actress and she portrays the character, interpreting the whims and the devil-may-care attitude of the veritable "Peg o' My Heart" of the woods, most admirably.

The part of "Babe" proves a test, also, for Miss Moore's versatility, for while the character of the white Indian girl is mainly a comedy one, there is, nevertheless, quite a pathetic touch to the story which calls for brilliant emotional acting.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Milton Sills will be seen in "The Last Hour."

The Orpheum

"THE EAGLE'S FEATHER," on view today at this theatre, is a Metro production featuring Elmer Fair and James Kirkwood. Here is a photo-drama that will appeal to those who like vivid adventure and yet it will have an irresistible appeal for those who crave excitement and those who appreciate fine acting and artistic production. This is Metro's dramatization of the famous story of the same name which appeared in Cosmopolitan magazine some time ago, written by Katharine Newlin Burt, one of the younger American short story writers who has attained international fame. The cast includes James Kirkwood, Mary Alden, Elmer Fair, Lester Cline, William Ormond, John Elliott, Charles McHugh and George Slegmann.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, "The Three Ages," starring Buster Keaton, will be shown.

Be Prepared for Coughs

Do not wait until an attack of "flu" is upon you. Take care of the little cough or cold and prevent the big one, or an attack of "flu." Bear in mind Foley's Honey and Tar, the safe and sure remedy for coughs, colds, bronchitis and throat troubles and coughs resulting from "flu." Tornadoes Play Strong Ambridge Elks Eleven Tomorrow at 3 O'Clock

Local Independent Team Will Have Another Hard Proposition to Handle.

MAY MEET BROWNSVILLE

The Connelville Tornadoes will play another fast team on the home field tomorrow afternoon. The game will be at 3 o'clock and the Ambridge Elks will be the attraction. The clash will be on the Limestone Hill field. Coach Smeak has been working hard during the past week to improve his organization in the hopes of erasing from the minds of the fans the first defeat of the season which occurred last week when Hope-Harvey was victor.

The squad showed lack of cohesion and it has not escaped the notice of the team's followers. Many remarks on the absence of team work were heard and to come up to expectations more regular workouts have been held.

First Girls' Football Game at Scottdale, in Mud, Great Fun for Spectators

Special to The Courier.

SCOTSDALE, Nov. 24.—Scottdale girls have taken to football. Establishing an innovation in this part of the State teams from the public schools battled for an hour in the mud at Loucks Park yesterday afternoon, following the cessation of rain which fell nearly all day, with the result that the Freshman Class of the high school defeated Grade 8 by a score of 18-0. About 100 fans, some boys and men, mostly women and girls, witnessed the game which few thought would be played because of the weather.

Clad in kilickers and sweaters the girls rolled about in the mud with as much zeal as their brothers of the gridiron. "Fun galore" there was, said a spectator.

There is to be another game next Friday afternoon when the winners yesterday will play the Sophomores. An effort will be made to stage the game at Aviation Field. If the weather is favorable it is expected there will be a large gathering of lovers of the sport.

Three touchdowns were made in the initial game, Captain Small being credited with two and Miss Whitman with one.

The line-up: Freshmen—L. E. Keedy, L. T. Strickler, L. G. Lewis, C. Jones, R. G. Newcomer, R. T. Wenner, R. E. Wiley, C. B. Engle, R. H. Murray, L. H. Puller, F. B. Loucks.

Cokers Meet Greensburg Here Today

The biggest scholastic game of the season is scheduled for this afternoon at Fayette Field. Greensburg High and Connelville High will clash. The game will be at 3 o'clock.

In spite of the threatening weather this morning hopes were held out for a fair afternoon. The forecast issued last night for today said the atmosphere would be cloudy and colder, with still colder weather tomorrow, making no mention of any possible rain.

TORNADES AND BROWNSVILLE TO CONFER TONIGHT

Hopes of football fans that they may still see the title clash between the Connelville Tornadoes and the Brownsville Independents have been revived by the announcement that Managers Bill Long of the river town team and John Fustile of the Cokers will meet once more tonight—in Unionsville to try to come to terms. If tonight's conference fails then the teams will not meet. If it goes through it is very likely the game will be played within a week.

"Lights and Shadows of the Present Age"

—A Lecture by Dr. Edward Howard Griggs

UNDER the auspices of the Young Men's Bible Class of the First M. E. Church, Dr. Griggs, a nationally famous lecturer and teacher, will deliver a lecture upon "Lights and Shadows of the Present Age"—one of the most entertaining in his entire repertoire.

December 5th—At the High School Auditorium

Lyman P. Powell, Director of the Educational Department of the Cosmopolitan Magazine writes of Dr. Griggs in that journal: "Whether speaking on literature or art, biography or ethics, industry or government, life has always been his theme. As Dr. John Nolen says, 'Professor Griggs has stood long upon the mountain top, watching and understanding human life in all its processes, reflecting earnestly upon his vision and then creating out of himself a message that is clear, wise, largely original and inspiring.' 'Thousands who hear him are courteously inspired to think And he touches the heart not merely by a winsome personality, but also by a human love rooted in the conviction that 'It is men and women who are eternally the final capital of any land'.

Connellsville has a record equally as good, if not better, than Browns-ville this year. The locals feel they have every claim to the county title but are very desirous of playing League's team. Fans from all sections of the county are demanding that the managers cease their petty wrangling and settle on some sort of agreement.

and Will Take Charge of Work Again.

RAILROADERS' SERVICE

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, Nov. 24.—Rev. E. H. Leubach, who had been away for his health, has returned and will resume his regular church services on Sunday morning. In the evening the annual thank-offering service will be held by the women of the church. Mrs. B. A. Wright of Latrobe, president of the Westmoreland Classis, will deliver the address. A part of the program will be a "rainbow pageant" by eight women.

Special Railroad Service.
A canvass was made of the town for railroaders and their families, all of whom have been invited to a special service to be held at the Christian Church on Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The middle tier of seats is to be reserved for railroaders and their families until 7:30 o'clock. A special musical program has been arranged. Rev. Paul S. Wright is pastor of the church.

Parents of Trauma Fined.
Justice of the Peace William Kennel held two hearings last evening, both for the violation of the school law. Paul Dravers of Central, whose daughter, Christena, attended the Tarr School, was fined $5 and costs. W. M. Loefer of East Home Place, whose daughter, Catherine, attends school at Swedestown, paid $5 and costs.

Reception For Pastor.
The B. Y. P. U. of the Baptist Church held a very pleasing social last evening in charge of the leaders of this society so that all of the young people of the church might meet Rev. E. E. Williams, the new pastor of the church and his wife. A most enjoyable get-together evening was spent.

Free Concert.
A very pleasing concert will be given in the Baptist Church on Monday evening. This is another of a series given by the women of this church, each of which have been very good. It will be free.

Deacons Bible Class.
The Deacons Bible Class of the United Brethren Church held a business meeting at the social room of the church last evening. Reports were given by committees. Refreshments were served. Mrs. Howard Stewart was chairman of the social committee. Her aides were Mrs. G. R. Grantham, Mrs. Aaron McClain, Mrs. Margaret Dast, Mrs. Frank Elcher, Mrs. D. P. Fisher, Mrs. Leslie Stoner and Mrs. Howard Miner.

Intermediates Want Games.
The Y. M. C. A. Intermediates basketball team would like to have games with 14-15-year-old teams. Address Joseph Stoffer, manager, 121 Walnut avenue, Scottdale, or call Bell telephone 355-W.

Harsh Himebaugh.
Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Himebaugh have arrived in Scottdale and will make their home here. Mr. Himebaugh, who is boys' work secretary at the Y. M. C. A., and Miss DeOla Alice Himebaugh were married November 19 at City. The ring ceremony was used and only the members of both families were present. Mr. and Mrs. Himebaugh will make their home in Spring street.

Firemen's Dinner Tonight.
The Firemen's Social Club will hold a chicken and waffle dinner in the firemen's rooms at the borough building this evening.

Everton U. B. Services.
Sunday will be a great day for the United Brethren Church of Everton. Improvements to the extent of $2,000 have been made in the way of interior decorating and the installing of new seats. The special day will start at 7 A. M. with a sunrise prayer meeting in charge of trustees. At 10 A. M. a combined service will be held of Sunday school and church. At 6:30 Christian Endeavor will be in charge of Mrs. C. Morris. At 7:30 another message will be brought by Dr. J. P. Lantier. Dr. Lantier is now over 80 years of age and has been dean of a seminary for 50 years. The choir has been trained by D. M. Shearer of Connelville.

"Was it those papers he's been worrying about?" Jennie asked. Anson couldn't say as to that, but they were what appeared to be some papers in a very dirty envelope, addressed to Mr. Greer. He had put them on Mr. Greer's writing-desk in the library.

It was in a spirit of sheer idleness that the girl, when she had repaired to this room for an after-dinner cigarette, went over to the desk and looked at the envelope. It was a plain, local size envelope that had been sealed and roughly torn open. It was crumpled and smeared with mud, and the sheet of typewritten, sheets it contained bulged out a little and was threatened with contamination. The impulse that moved her to withdraw it altogether was perhaps half curiosity as to whether this was, after all, the document whose loss had so distressed her father, and that other half was fastidiousness.

With a gingerly pinch of her fingertips she covered the envelope to the wastepaper basket. The air about it in the other hand sprang open, and she glanced idly at the typewritten contents. She had no sense of prying. She had assumed all along that the papers related to some matter of business, and business was something in which she took the most tepid interest. But her attention was caught by the first line her eye fell upon.

"Trix was met at corner of Broadway and . . . Why, that was the Armstrong corner where she used to meet George!" the young lady driving 1913 model Archer roadster, license number—

It was the report of a detective agency upon her and George. From the twentieth of October, the week of her father's return from the Northwest, to the fifteenth of November, when she'd gone North with him again. It was a pretty thorough job of spying, she noted; not many of their meetings had been missed.

The thing was loathsome—this was what she felt first, before any thought of the consequences of her revelations had time to form in her mind; loathsome to the idea of detective agencies, even its very details, though here an attempt had been made to give it a businesslike, impersonal look.

That detective's report had put her out of contact with love—made it seem dirty to her. It was hard to realize that it was only this afternoon she had been looking at Mrs. Henderson's room, pretending to be George's wife. But he was her friend, anyhow. He had Jennie MacArthur were the two significant people she knew. So she couldn't tell herself she couldn't even run away without seeing him first.

At half-past eight or so, when she heard her father ring, and on inquiry she forestalled Anson and, unbidden, it herself. She carried the detective's report along with her, rolled up tight in one hand. She had forgotten Doctor Bennett's orders as well as a resolution of her own not to see her father again, nor speak to him until he was well, nor until her own mind was made up as to what she was going to do.

"Got!" he said, crisply, at sight of her in the doorway. "It was you I wanted to see."

"You look better since your nap," she remarked.

"I feel like the devil," he told her; "but my mind's cleared up all right. That's why I want to talk to you, without waiting any longer. Sit down."

She obeyed him without a word. He waited a moment longer before he spoke again. Then, "I've got the goods on you, Trix. I know what you've been up to with this rump rump."

"Yes, and I know what you've been up to, too," she countered. "I've been reading this." She tossed the document dramatically upon the bed. His good hand groped for it, but couldn't quite reach it. "It's the report of your detective," she said.

"When in I did you get hold of that?" he asked.

"A man brought it to the door while I was at dinner," she told him. "He wanted a reward for it, and Anson paid him. The envelope was torn open and all muddy. It fell out of your pocket, I suppose, when you were hit by that car. The man had read it, of course—and goodness knows how many other people! Not that that matters much—to anybody. I spent an hour reading it myself. It's pretty good. Gave you what you wanted, anyhow. And it'll save a lot of sob-stuff—between you and me, I mean."

"She was elated by the knowledge that she was hurting him savagely. He writhed and then, at the pain this movement cost him, groaned out, 'Oh, God!'

"You'd better be still," she went on quietly. "I'm going to tell you what I meant about the sob-stuff. We had quite a lot of it the other time, when George brought me home drunk. All about how you loved me and were going to trust me just the same. Jennie was going to stay here to take care of me and be my friend while you were away. But the past was going to be forgotten. It was a clean slate, you said. I suppose you thought she'd go on her way. Maybe you told her to. But she didn't. Jennie was square with me, and with you, too. But when you came back she hadn't anything but tell you about me. No, before you'd been home a week you hired detectives—to get the goods on me like you said."

He contradicted her here. "I didn't," he said. "I didn't put detectives on you. I put 'em on that dog of a chauffeur I hired for getting too familiar with you. And God knows I was right to do it."

"Oh, yes, you were right," she admitted. "You thought you'd get me that way, and you did. But if you'd trusted me like you pretended to, or loved me one little bit—you wouldn't have thought so. That's why I say we can cut out the sob-stuff."

"You stop talking a minute and listen," he commanded. "I happen to want you to get this straight. Burns gave me as a reference when he applied for this job in the air mail. I was fool enough to write them a good strong letter about him. Said he had left me voluntarily to improve his position, and I thought he deserved it. I put in everything I could think of to help him. So when I came home after he'd got the job, I wanted to see how he was getting on. I stopped at the hotel one morning, thinking I'd see him take the mail out; wish him luck and go on. It happened I was too late. He was still in sight, heading south along the lake when I got there. But I stopped and talked with him. The man had quite a lot to say about him and his luck. One thing he said was that Burns was a hit with the women. There was one well-to-do lady, he said, used to meet him quite often. Came out sometimes in a big car."

"Trix, I swear I didn't think it was you. Wouldn't believe it was you. But I knew you were sore because I'd let him go. You gave that away the first night we had dinner after I came back. Down to the restaurant—remember? I thought if I could prove to you that he was running with some body else you'd quit thinking about him. That's why I told the agency to look him up. I never thought they'd get you with him."

"Why not?" she asked. Her reason had accepted his explanation as about half true. "Why shouldn't it have been me?"

"His face darkened. 'Why not?' he asked. 'Because I couldn't believe'

His Face Darkened. "Why Not?" He Asked.

It of you. I couldn't believe that a daughter of mine could ever lower herself to be the private snop of a discharged chauffeur. Why, good God, Trix, when I read that paper this morning in Nathan's office—something had happened to me. I didn't know where I was. I don't know where I went after I left there, until the car hit me. When I came to I thought perhaps the whole thing had been a kind of nightmare that had begun since I got hurt—going to Nathan's office and reading that damned paper and all. And when you put your face down on my hand a while ago and said you wanted me to love you again—"

His voice broke at that, and she felt the tears coming up into her eyes. "Trix!" he cried at sight of them. "Trix, see it last time—the stuff in that paper. Tell me it's a lie from beginning to end. Say she has no word and I'll believe you even now!"

She took him up. "It isn't true," she said, quietly.

At the blankly incredulous stare this drew from him she uttered a short laugh. "What it says is true," she went on. "But what that detective" thinks, isn't true. Not what you think, either. George is in love with me, but he wants to marry me. I didn't know whether I wanted to marry him or not, but I'm going to now."

There was a long silence between them after that. She knew it for a full rather than the end, but she waited comfortably, feeling very solid and invincible. She'd never said outright before—even to herself—that she was going to marry George, and the declaration startled her.

"If that's true," his father began at last, but he flinched under her smile and revised the sentence. "As long as that's true, say the word and I'll buy tickets tomorrow for a trip abroad. Mediterranean, cruise, Algeria—Cairo, ride around on camels and things. We could start right after Christmas. I could get away by then, I think."

Her momentary security collapsed. It was a dazzling bribe he offered. Travel, adventure, bright colors in the sunshine, hot sands, camels! But he didn't stop there; hardly paused.

"I wish we could start tomorrow!" It's this next couple of months—That's only half the bargain, Trix. You'll have to cut this other business out, absolutely. No tapering off with last farewells and that sort of stuff. You've been on this too long—and if you have got by so far, it's just a plain miracle. Take my word for that. I know how those things go."

"I suppose you do," she said, reflectively, and this stopped him short, with a dull flush and a shifting of the eyes. "I wonder," she persisted, "if you ever saved a girl—against herself, the way George has saved me."

"Drop that line, right there!" he commanded. "That isn't decent."

"I wasn't trying to be decent," she said. "Honestly, but that's as you like. Only I don't see why you should be so down on my marrying him."

"Then you don't read the papers," Good Lord, Trix, you're out of your head! Just about every paper has there's some fool daughter of a rich man runs off with her father's chauffeur, and it always adds either in a shouting or in the divorce court. This is my fault, in a way. I was a fool to let you run with him the way you did when you first came. I didn't wake up till it was most too late. But I'm awake now, all right. There's no argument on George Burns. He's out!"

"Dead?" she began, but paused a moment to search her mind. She'd never been so deeply serious in her life, nor felt so compelling a need to let out the truth. "Oh, I'm in love with George. I want him. I'm not silly about him any more. I was at first, like those girls in the papers. But I've learned a lot in these last six months—and I always did know more than you thought I did. I didn't want to fall in love with him. I was frightened about it. But I couldn't stop. So I don't see what else there is for me to do. If I married some body else, that I wasn't in love with, I don't know what I might do. And if I don't marry anybody—Dad, you must know how I feel. I'm like you, I must be because I'm not like most girls. Dad, he's good! He's kind and he's square. He's never tried to take any advantage. He's helped me through everything. And he's seen enough, goodness knows! And if you'd be friendly to us and help him a little—He isn't a chauffeur now and he isn't ever going to be again."

She saw she was getting nowhere with the plea. Her father's face was set. "Good!" she flared out. "He's too good for me; that's the only trouble. He's the best man I know. He's better than either of us."

"Like can he be!" said Joe. "I didn't mean to spring this on you, but I guess it's time I did. I'm going to show up this bird. Go to the small middle drawer in my desk and bring me a plain sealed envelope you'll find there. Bring it in just as it is. He called after her when without a word she had gone on the errand. She hurried herself for being frightened, but there was no disguising the fact that she was. "Now, open it," he commanded when once more she stood before him. "Look and see what's inside."

It was a canceled check for a thousand dollars, made out to George Burns and bearing her father's signature. "Turn it over and look at the indorsement," he added. "You know his handwriting, I guess."

She obeyed him mechanically. "What was this for?" she asked. She managed to make her voice ring cold and hard enough, but she sat down quickly in the chair she had recently quitted.

"Doesn't the date tell you anything?" he asked. It was back in August. "Why, that's the day I fired him. The day he brought you home drunk. As you say, he'd been enough."

She repeated, word for word, her former question, this time with a peevish, angry emphasis. "What was this check for?"

It struck him to an outbreak of anger. "Why, if you want it straight, it was the price he got for keeping his mouth shut and for letting you alone."

"Blackmail?" she asked.

New Record by Cobb

Cobb smashed three of the pre-season 'impenetrable' baseball records during the season of 1933.

When the mighty Georgian turned in an average of .338 it made his eighteenth consecutive year above the .300 mark. The old record was held by Hans Wagner with 17 years.

Through those 18 years Cobb hit for an average of .313, whereas Wagner's was .300.

By scoring 102 runs and hammering out 188 hits in 1933, Cobb took from Wagner the 'unbeatable' records for total rallies and sacrifices in a baseball season.

Cobb's record now is 1,735 runs and 3,454 hits against 1,725 runs and 3,300 hits by the immortal 'Flying Dutchman.'

WOMAN SPEEDER IS SHY

Too Bashful to Appear in Court, So Husband Acts as Proxy.

Dreading through modesty and bashfulness, to appear before Judge Charles W. Root in Yorktown court in New York to make her first report on probation, Mrs. Dorothy Kelly, twenty-one, of 133 West Ninety-second street, Manhattan, waited outside the building and sent her husband inside as her proxy.

She traveled about twelve miles to report in court, and then did not have the courage to walk in. Her husband, appearing for her, told Judge Root she was too shy to come in. The judge smiled and excused her, but advised her husband to caution her against further spending in her automobile. Recently she was placed on probation on a speeding charge preferred by Police Sergeant Thomas Merriker, who had handed her a summons.

Fashions in Wives Vary

Fashions in wives are not quite so capricious as fashions in clothes. They vary with decades instead of with seasons. It wasn't so long ago that the "ash-tray wife" was the most approved model of femininity. "Eliaboth" immortalized her in "The Caravans," we remember. "Indeed, the perfect woman does not talk at all. Who wants to hear her? All that we ask of her is that she shall listen intelligently when we wish, for a change, to tell about our own thoughts, and that she should be at hand when we want anything. Surely this is not much to ask. Matches, ash trays, and one's wife should be, so to speak, on every table; and I maintain that the perfect wife copies the contents of the matches and the ash trays, and combines being useful with being dumb."

Taking No Chances

An Englishman staying at a Nevada ranch suggested that his host should take a walk with him to a mountain that looked close at hand. The Englishman was deceived in the appearance of the landscape, owing to the rarity of the atmosphere. After walking several hours the mountain seemed no nearer.

Returning by a different route, the pair came upon an irrigated field. At the first ditch the Englishman sat down and began to remove his shoes.

"What are you going to do?" inquired the Nevada.

The Englishman contemplated the ditch and said, "Why, I'm going to swim this blooming river."

PROGRESSIVE publications belonging to the Audit Bureau of Circulations have adopted an open and "Above-Board" circulation policy. They lay before advertisers circulation facts that have been verified by experienced auditors.

Advertisers, before the advent of the A. B. C., were forced to depend upon hearsay circulation information and unverified "sworn statements" of circulation. No detailed figures were available and no verification was possible except at great expense to the advertiser.

Nowadays advertisers look to the A. B. C. for dependable, unbiased circulation information and select their advertising mediums accordingly.

Today 91% of the circulation of papers having over five thousand circulation is audited by the A. B. C. It should not be long before every newspaper goes on record with A. B. C. membership.

This will make it possible for every advertiser to use detailed circulation facts, covering the entire newspaper field. This will permit a fair comparison and eliminate guesswork from the purchase of space.

The Courier is a member of the A. B. C. and would be pleased to submit the latest circulation report.

Among The Churches

FIRST UNITED PRESBYTERIAN

Where? Morton crosses Pittsburgh. Francis J. Wood, D. D., minister.

Bible school at 9:45 A. M.; morning worship, 11. The sermon in the morning is founded on the text from the Gospel according to Luke, the twenty-first chapter and thirty-first and thirty-second verses. The main point did He not tell Peter that He had played for them that they fall not? It seems to be an unusual prayer. Why did he not tell Peter that he had played for them that they fall not? It seems to be an unusual prayer. Why did he not tell Peter that he had played for them that they fall not? It seems to be an unusual prayer.

So that he would not deny him or so that he would not fall into the temptation of the Devil? Just the message we need today. In the evening at 7:30 the commendation "Thou Shalt not Kill" will be the basis for the sermon. You are welcome.

At the Church of God, Sylvester Fulmer, minister: Sunday school at 9:45, sermon, 10:30, "God's Everlasting Mercy" at 7: "The Urruly Member, or the Sign of Hell."

blood-of human trips. Where will the line be next Thursday morning—at the First Baptist Church, answering the call of the President of the United States and of the Governor of Pennsylvania, in giving praise and thanks to God, or will they be elsewhere, peering North liberties to their heathen gods, pleasure, bacchus and belly?

TRINITY LUTHERAN

Fairview avenue, William H. Heitrich, D. D., pastor. Class is celebrating 9 o'clock. This is one of the largest classes in the history of the church. Shows that parents are interested in the spiritual welfare of their children. Sunday school, 10 A. M. Worship with sermon, 11 A. M. Sermon, "Are You Ready?" Luther League, 6:45 P. M. Members are asked to bring jellies and preserves for a barrel to be packed for the Old People's Home, Zelleopolis, Pa. Evening worship, 7:30 P. M. Sermon, "Waiting for His Coming." Every member canvass next Sunday afternoon, December 2. All members of the church are requested to be ready to receive the canvassers and subscribe a weekly amount sufficient to support the church for the coming year. All canvassers must meet at the church Friday evening November 30, for final instructions. Come to church services, Sunday, and learn what our duty is regarding this canvass and what our subscriptions should be per member. This work is of the utmost importance.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN—J. L. Froedrich, pastor; W. F. Hunsell, minister. Bible school, 9:45. Morning worship, 11, subject, "Thanks for Unpardonable Gifts." What is the unpardonable gift, or is there more than one? Are there many? In this Thanksgiving season do we know of some gift which we have received of which we can not speak. In the evening there will be a song service—the gospel is song. Heart songs, songs we all like, familiar to us all will be sung by the choir.

TRINITY EPISCOPAL—Fairview avenue and Prospect street, E. Allen Bidelle, lay reader. Sunday school at 10 A. M. First Sunday before Advent. Divine worship at 7:45 P. M. Welcome extended to all.

COVENANTER—Rev. Johnston makes the following announcement: "14 Sabbath school, 11, sermon, The Character of Eli; 2:30, Junior meeting, Mrs. Wilson, superintendent; 4:30, C. Y. P. U., 'What We Thank God For,' leader, Mrs. Bessie Forswalt, 7:30, sermon, 'A Forsaken Leader,' 7:30 Wednesday evening prayer-meeting 'My Cause For Thanksgiving,' leader, C. B. Murphy. This is our annual Thanksgiving prayer-meeting. A wonderful prayer-meeting last Wednesday evening. The attendance nearly equaled the membership of the congregation. Those desiring front seats will need to come early. The Teachers' meeting at one half hour before the prayer-meeting."

METHODIST PROTESTANT—West Apple street, J. H. Lambertson, minister. Class meeting, 9:00 A. M.; Sunday school, 9:45 A. M.; morning worship, 11 A. M., subject, "The Most Important Word in the Bible"; Junior C. E., 2 P. M.; Intermediate C. E., 4 P. M.; Senior C. E., 6:45 P. M., topic, "What We Thank God For." In the evening at 7:30 the pastor will preach an evangelistic sermon. The revival meetings have been in progress for three weeks and a number of persons have accepted Christ, and Christians have been helped.

SUMMIT METHODIST PROTESTANT—J. H. Lambertson, supply pastor. Sunday school, 2 P. M.; preaching at 3:30 P. M., by Rev. George Conway of Uniontown. Senior C. E. prayer meeting at 7:30 P. M. Ladies' Aid on Thursday afternoon at the church.

FIRST METHODIST EPISCOPAL—Dr. Bennett W. Hutchinson, minister. Until the new church is ready services are being held in the Cameron school hall, on South Pittsburgh street. Sunday school at 9:45. Two men's classes meet in the Y. M. C. A. Also the N. C. D. Class for women. Morning worship, 11 o'clock. Sermon on "Life Transformed by Christ," or "Practical Idealism." At 7:30 the pastor will preach on "Seeking God." What is the condition of seeking God? How do we reconcile the statement of Jesus: "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father," with that of John saying, "No man hath seen God at any time?" Good singing by choir and congregation. Visitors made welcome. The Epworth League at 6:30. All invited. A very timely and important subject.

ST. JOHN'S GERMAN LUTHERAN—Carnegie avenue and East South street, George Dietz, pastor. Services at 10:15 A. M. Subject of the English sermon taken from Matthew 22.

1-14. "Why So Few That Are Chosen?" Subject of the German sermon taken from Luke 8, 34-42: "The Disciple is Not Above His Master." Sunday school at 9 o'clock. Luther League will meet at 11:45. Confirmation class on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. All are cordially invited.

CHURCH OF THE BRETHREN

Vine and Newmyer, South Side, J. A. Buffenmyer, pastor. Sunday school, 9:45 A. M. Lesson subject, "Christians Called to be Missionaries." Morning worship at 10:45 A. M., subject of sermon, "Loyalty to God's House." This is a message everyone should hear. Christian Workers' Society at 6:45. Evening worship at 7:30. The subject of the evening message will be, "The Mind of Christ." These will be the first services in the new church and should therefore be largely attended. Council meeting on Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. At this meeting we will elect the officers for 1934. All are welcome.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL—Dunbar, C. E. Chapman, pastor. Sunday school, 9:45. Sermon, "Stand Upon Your Feet and Hear God Speak." Epworth League devotional service at 6:45. Miss Goldie Brope, leader. League officers will be installed at 7:30 by the district president, Mrs. W. H. Williams. Brief address by the pastor.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE—Dunbar-Palms Building Church services and Sunday school at 10:45 A. M. Subject of lesson sermon, "Heal and Body." Wednesday evening meeting at 8 o'clock. The reading room of this church is open week days from 2 to 4 o'clock.

SMITHFIELD, Nov. 24.—Miss Georgia Miller returned yesterday from a visit of a few days with her sister, Mrs. B. F. Morgan, of Uniontown.

H. R. Mathis is preparing to start for Florida in a few days for the winter.

Miss Freda Glover, a nurse at the Uniontown Hospital, was calling on friends here Thursday.

Charles Robinson, who has been a patient at the Uniontown Hospital, is improving rapidly and able to be out.

Prof. W. S. Deffenbaugh, formerly of this place but now of Washington, D. C. was calling on his many friends here this week.

"Whew!" Said Santa,
"Never Saw Such A Crowd In My Life!"

"NEVER saw such a crowd in my life," said Santa with a grin, as he started to hitch up Francer and Dancer after his party here last Thursday.

"Would you believe it," he continued, "when I left home yesterday to come to your store I put over 400 balloons and 400 lollipops in the top of my pack so that I could give every little boy and girl I met a present. I thought that was enough for every friend I had in Connelville."

"But I hadn't been here two hours when I was dumfounded to find that every last one of my presents had been given away—with still more little friends flocking in to see me I do hope that no one was disappointed."

"And just in case that somebody was—and to show that Santa Claus always keeps his word—I will make arrangements to come back to your store on Saturday, December first, with a whole pack full of new presents for those who didn't get a gift today. And I will give one of these presents to every boy and girl who comes to see me accompanied by a parent or older person."

"I had such a wonderful time this afternoon that I want to give a party all over again and Saturday December first will be the day. Tell the children for me."

Watch For The Announcement Of Santa's Next Party!
